

Moose is the Algonquin Indian name meaning “eater of twigs”. A full grown moose can eat 40 to 60 pounds of browse each day and can weigh over 1100 pounds. Their sense of smell and hearing is very good but they are nearsighted and do not see well. The moose is the largest member of the deer family in North America.

