

Electricity powers street-lights, stoplights and other things that keep us safe on the road. It can also help put fuel in the engines of police cars, fire engines and ambulances. Energy can be used for many things that make us all safe.