

Europe

Sea walls and river barriers keep the North Sea from flooding into the large areas of the Netherlands that are below sea level. The capital city is Amsterdam, but the center of government is at The Hague.