

The Spaniards were the first settlers in California, but were not impressed. Their interest revived when in 1579, Sir Francis Drake sailed along its coast.