

Huckleberry Finn lived in a village on the Mississippi River. His only relative was a ne'er-do-well father who let Huck take care of himself. Huck spent most of his time outdoors and was thoroughly happy. He and his friend Tom Sawyer and Tom's brother, Sid, were happiest in their boat on the River, performing the many adventures Tom had read in his books.

