

THE PERCUSSION FAMILY

This family is the crash and boom of the orchestra. Percussion players add rhythm to the orchestra by striking or shaking different materials together. There are many different kinds of percussion instruments. Some have funny names such as the glockenspiel, xylophone, triangle, and gong. Can you guess why the piano is part of the percussion family?

