

Butterflies use many forms of camouflage to protect themselves. Some use warning colors to fend off predators, while others simply imitate these warning colors. Some butterflies tilt their wings to conceal their coloration and blend in with the shadows.

© 2004 MindWare®