

Lark Bunting

- The birds migrate into Colorado each April and fly south again in fall.
- Males are black with white wing markings during the summer and look more like females in the winter. Females are a grey-brown throughout the year.
- Nest on the ground with 3 to 5 eggs per nest.
- Adopted as Colorado's state bird on April 29, 1931.