

It can also spread when people touch something the virus has been on, like hands or door handles. This is why you might see people wearing masks and gowns.