

Passengers and crew members jumping from the stern of the Titanic. As the bow of the Titanic sank under the water, the stern began to rise into the air. Believing that the ship's last moments were at hand, many men who had crowded up onto the rising stern began to jump into the sea. Some were picked up by lifeboats, but others died in the freezing water.