

OPIOID ADDICTION IN THE HOME

We often think about drug addiction as sketchy criminals on the street willing to do anything for their next high. However, the reality is that drug addicts come in all shapes, sizes and economic backgrounds. Because of the rampant over-prescribing and ease of access, opioid abuse is very common in the U.S. Based on statistics from 2014, more than 10,000,000 Americans aged 12 or older used an opiate for non-medical use. Each day 44 Americans die from a prescription opioid drug overdose. Roughly 20% of high school seniors have abused an opioid drug in their lifetime. Parents steal their children's prescription pills, children steal their parents' pills, and children steal their grandparents' pills every day in America. Addiction becomes a large r...bl...n th...st...ff sm...l. One or two pills become one or two bottles, which leads to ne...n...g st... the next high.
