

Police used tear gas, whips, and clubs to stop them, and this event became known as Bloody Sunday. The Voting Rights Act was passed in response to the march.