

Paprika

The spice, paprika, is made by grinding dried peppers. It was first developed in Spain, but Hungary is the country most famous for it. It is used to season and add color to soups, stews, rices and sausage.