

Flag of Barbados

Adopted November 30, 1966. Designed by Grantley W. Prescod.

The flag consists of a triband of two bands of ultramarine, which are said to stand for the ocean; separated by a golden middle band, representing the sand on the island. A black trident-head is centred within the golden band. The trident symbol was taken from Barbados' colonial badge, where the trident is shown with Britannia holding it.