

James Buchanan, the only bachelor president, invited his niece, Harriet Lane, to act as the official White House hostess. At her request, a conservatory was added to supply flowers for the many balls and receptions.