

When temperatures become much more cold, other neurons join in to tell our brain. These neurons are called Nociceptors and code for pain and unpleasantness.

That's why winter isn't fun without the right coat!

