

White blood cells encircle pathogens and then dissolve them.

When they find them. they fight them away.