

Although you may think you are alone when you're online, you're actually connected to many other people through the Internet.

This means you can meet a lot of interesting people, but some may not be who they say they are.

