

After World War II, soldiers returned to their families and post-war jobs to build a better America.